PEGGY MACFARLANE, FORMER MAYOR OF GODALMING DIES AGED 101

It is with much sadness that Godalming Town Council announces the death of former Mayor, Margaret (Peggy) Macfarlane, at 2.00am this morning (1 February 2021). She died peacefully at home in Farncombe from natural causes aged 101 years. She is survived by her grandchildren.

Speaking of Peggy's death the Mayor of Godalming Councillor Penny Rivers said "Peggy served her community for very many years with good grace and great generosity. It was a privilege to know her and she will be much missed. May she rest in peace and rise in glory".

Peggy joined Godalming Town Council in 1974, along with her husband Walter, and became Mayor in 1984; she served as a Councillor until 1991 and despite her age kept very much in touch with the Town Council over the years.
